

A busy weekend

Ed: What is everybody doing this weekend? Do we have any time to go to the cinema together?

Philip: Sorry, Saturday doesn't work for me. I'm visiting my grandparents. It's their fiftieth wedding anniversary and they are throwing a party for the whole family.

Tracy: That's lovely! How about tomorrow, then? Are you doing anything in the afternoon?

Ed: I have my swimming practice.

Philip: Yeah, and I am going shopping for a new mobile phone. This one is already four years old. It's high time I found a new one.

Tracy: I agree. Are you going to the new mall? I wanted to check out their fashion stores. Perhaps I can come with you.

Philip: That's a great idea! So, the two of us are hitting the mall Friday afternoon, then.

Ed: When are you going to do your homework? We have that huge Biology test next week, and I also have to write a History essay.

Tracy: I am going to do most of my homework on Sunday. I like to have my Saturdays free. I am going to sleep until noon and then call some friends. I am probably going to spend my afternoon downtown with Lisa and Joanne.

Ed: I'd love a free Saturday, but I have to do all of my studying then. My family always goes to the church on Sunday morning. And my parents like us to spend Sunday afternoon together. I think we're going cycling in the park and then getting some pizza and ice-cream.

Philip: Yum! But, does that mean there is no time to see a film?

Tracy: Well, the new mall also has a cinema. How about going there Friday night?

Philip: That's a great idea!

Ed: Count me in.

Read the text and fill in the table. Who is going to do what and when?

	Tracy	Philip	Ed
Friday afternoon
Friday night
Saturday morning
Saturday afternoon
Saturday night
Sunday morning
Sunday afternoon			